

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a lightweight door for motor vehicles, using the hidden bar-element construction 5 technique. It is characterised by the supporting frame being made in a single piece from a metal sheet of minimum thickness; said metal sheet being a pressed part or a deep-drawn part.

(Fig. 2)

1094747/4747401